SPANISH WAR NURSES HERE

Women who Nursed Soldiers through Fevers and Wounds during Country's Last War n. w in Gettysburg for Annual Meeting.

Representing over four hundred women who were army nurses during the Spanish American War, the officers and most interested members of their association are meeting in Gettysburg to-day. Sessions are in progress in the parlors of the Eagle Hotel.

The nurses now here are located in many different sections of the country and practically all those, who were engaged in nursing during the stirring times of 1908, still follow that occupation, many as army and navy nurses, while others are employed by cities or schools and still others are engaged in private nursing.

Miss Mary M. Cloud, the president, who occupied the chair at to-day's meetings, is at present engaged as a nurse in the United States Naval Hospital at Brooklyn, New York. Miss Rose M. Heavren, of Ferguson Falls,
Minnesota, is the recording secretary;
Miss M. Isabelle Harroun, of Toledo, Ohio, the corresponding secretary;
and Mrs. Charlton, of New York City, is the treasurer.

The organization is principally for social purposes though they carry on a beneficial feature in caring for any member who may need assistance. Annual trips are taken to some place of historic interest and this year Gettysburg was chosen. Trips over the battlefield have been a feature of the nurses' stay here and they express themselves as highly pleased with their visit to this place.

All the nurses now in Gettysburg saw active service during the Spanish-American War, either in the mobilization camps or in Cuba, Porto Rico or the Philippines, and they have many stories to tell of their experiences in dealing with fever and the other illnesses, which overtook the boys of 1908, or in calling for those who were wounded.

It is one of the most interesting bodies of visitors Gettysburg has had for many years and at the same time one of the most modest, the ladies being most reticent about giving any facts concerning their organization, though they delight in telling their recollections of "war times."

SMALL INTEREST IN PRIMARIES

Small Vote throughout the County.
Harry Bumbaugh is Chosen on Democratic Ticket for Tax Collector. Other Features.

Not for many years has so little interest been taken in a primary election as on Tuesday, with the result, that but few votes were cast. This is attributed in part to the failure of many to register, and in part to the few contests.

The principal fight in the borough was for the Democratic nomination for tax collector. Harry E. Bumbaugh, the present collector, got the nomination over Emory J. Plank by a majority of twelve votes. Their totals in the wards were: First Ward, Bumbaugh 46, Plank 46; Second Ward, Bumbaugh 31,
Plank 19; Third Ward, Bumbaugh 21,
Plank 24. Totals, Bumbaugh 101, Plank 89.

All the candidates announced on the party tickets in these columns several weeks ago were chosen but in several instances, no regular candidates appearing, there were many scattering votes for an office. In the First Ward C. B. Dougherty received two votes for town council while eight or nine others received one each. Mr. Dougherty will accordingly go on the ticket.
J. A. Smiley, a regular candidate, received about the total Democratic vote cast.

Two school directors were to be chosen by the Democrats and only one name appeared, that of Charles S.
Speese. There were many scattering votes for this office and an effort appeared to place the name of several women on the ticket. Mrs. Marie E.
Richard, of Springs avenue, received 12 votes in the Second Ward and Mrs.
S. M. Stewart, of Baltimore street, was given six votes in the First and Second wards. Milton R. Kemmel polled sixteen in the borough and he stands as the other Democratic candidate.

The Third Ward had a contest on for Democratic councilmanic nominee.
The three candidates received as follows, O. G. Baughman 33, Altheodor Bushman 27, James McDonnell 24.
Two were to be chosen.

The only county contest was for the Democratic nomination for director of the poor. The totals in town were Harry B. Beard 49, Peter P. Eisenhart 45, Jacob Goodenberger 16, Daniel
A. Miller 16, Simon P. Miller 45.
The county results have not been tabulated.

PRE-CANCELLED STAMPS
Use Stamps Pre-Cancelled at a Number of Offices.

Beginning Tuesday the Postoffice Department started selling pre-cancelled postage stamps. The stamps have printed upon them the name of the postoffice before they are sold. Such stamps will be valid for postage on second, third and fourth class mail, and merchandise or parcel post matter, but not on letters or other sealed mail matter. No such stamps have yet been received at the Gettysburg office.
The stamps will be recognized only at the office named on them.

"I am convinced that the loss through the re-use or fraudulent use of such stamps will be negligible," says Postmaster General Burleson, "as compared with the great saving in expense and the increase in efficiency to be effected by their use."

CLOUDY DAYS AT HANOVER FAIR

Opening Day is Spoiled by Threatening Weather. Two Races Prove Interesting, though one Proves to be Almost a Farce.

Threatening weather was responsible for a small attendance at the opening of the Hanover Fair on Tuesday.
A shower fell during the afternoon but did not cause any inconvenience.
A number of midway attractions did not put in their appearance, while others got in too late to exhibit.

The lid was wide open on the midway. The usual number of gambling devices and games of chance lined the course opposite the race track and were in full operation during the afternoon. The Fair officials were stricter than last year, however, and a number were compelled to close down when the character of their game was discovered by the authorities.

The main building is comfortably filled, as are the other buildings on the grounds.
During the afternoon more than 100
children from the Catholic orphanage, near Abbottstown, attended the fair,
the guests of the Fair Association.

The racing program was shortened because of two of the events not having been filled. The three-year-old colt race was the feature of the events held, Joe Promise, owned by H. M.
Eldridge, of York, taking both heats, the first by a spectacular finish. In the last heat he got off to a bad start, but finished the first half in second place.
In the second half mile he nosed out Dr. Bell, Jr., at the stand, winning the heat by a head. In the second heat he held the lead from the start.

The two year old colt race, the second event on the program, developed more or less into a comedy, although the winner, Doc Elta, owned by E. C.
Armstrong, Prince Anne, Md., ran both heats nicely. A young colt entered and driven by John L. H. Miller, of Hanover, came close to being lapped in the two heats. It and "Matty the Great" were distanced in the first heat, but were allowed to run in the second heat in order that the money could be distributed. Miss Todwood, owned by Hentshall, of Baltimore, was the runner-up in each heat and captured second money.

The attractions on the quarter stretch were better than those last year, the trained lions being a decided feature. A comedy roller skating act also came in for rounds of applause.

L. L. MONROE
Chef at the Eagle Hotel for the Past Eight Years.

L. L. Monroe, one of the town's most respected colored citizens, died at his home on West street at noon today, aged 55 years, 7 months and 24 days.

Death was caused by a complication of diseases. Mr. Monroe had been in failing health for the last year but was confined to the house for only a week before his death came.

He is survived by his mother Mrs.
Clementine Gilbert, of Pittsburgh; two brothers, also of Pittsburgh and six children; three sons, John H., of Pittsburgh; Louis E., of Canton, Ohio, and J. G., of Butler, and three daughters, Mrs. H. C. Brant and Misses Anna and Clementine, all of Butler.

The body will be taken on Thursday to Butler where interment will be made.

Mr. Monroe was well known about town as he was chef at the Eagle Hotel for eight years before the present management took charge of it and was still employed as chef there when his death occurred.

PUTS TRUST IN "EDDIE" PLANK

Gettysburg Boy and Bender will be Relied upon to Take Care of the Pitching in Coming World's Series Games.

That Eddie Plank is to figure prominently in the coming world's series is the plan of Connie Mack who expects to work the Gettysburg boy and Bender as his principal pitchers.

Mack is not so optimistic of ultimate victory as he was when his team opposed the Giants two years ago. In discussing his club's chances he said:
"I intend to rely on my old standbys—Eddie Plank and Chief Bender, presuming, of course, that we win the American league pennant. That we will accomplish this little detail I am certain. This pair of hardy twirlers have stood me in good stead for a number of years, and they are surely not going to throw me down now."

"I have four good young pitchers—Shawkey, Houck, Bush and Brown—but Plank and Bender will shoulder the brunt of the work on the minaret for the Athletics when we meet the Giants for the third time."

"I will not go on record as saying that we will outthit McGraw's horde.
My club can hit equally as hard as that of McGraw, but in an abbreviated series, such as the world's series, calculations cannot be very dependable.
My players are more reliable afield, and that will prove a big advantage in our favor."

"While Plank and Bender are not rated very high in the pitchers' records, they are as reliable a duo of hurlers as I have ever had. Both are at their best in pinches, and in a short series I can recommend them to beat anything in sight."

"But it must be remembered that Plank and Bender are cold weather pitchers, and that is why I look to them to carry the Athletics through to another world's championship."

Analyzing the foregoing, it is found that Mack makes the reservation that if Plank and Bender are in their top form, this team had a good chance of victory. But should these veterans fail him—or should even one of them be unable to come up to the mark—Mack will be forced to call upon his youngsters and jeopardize his club's chances.

SAY PRIEST WAS COUNTERFEITER

Dentist Arrested as Accomplice of Girl's Murderer.

CHARRED BONE IS FOUND

Priest a "Master Criminal, Shamming Insanity," Declares Coroner, but Cable From Germany Says Insanity Runs in Family.

New York, Sept. 17.—Stripping from New York's river murder its mysteries, the police bared a nest of crime, feathered, they claim by Rev. Hans Schmidt, confessed slayer of Anna Ammiller and his pal, Dr. Ernest A. Muret, dentist by day, by night alleged counterfeiter.

Muret is under arrest, on a technical charge of having in his possession a pistol in violation of the Sullivan law. He was arrested after detectives ransacking Schmidt's apartments, had uncovered evidence to show that Schmidt was a counterfeiter. This evidence led them to a flat, rented by a man under the name of George Miller in which were found all essentials to the counterfeiter's craft.

The janitress of the building, brought face to face with Muret, greeted him as Miller. Muret, unaware of his impending apprehension, recognized her at once—and said so—as the woman from whom he rented the flat under his pseudonym.

Schmidt and Muret, the janitress said, and Muret, admitted, had spent long hours together in the flat. They told the renting agents that they were medical students and wanted the flat as a place for making experiments necessitated by their studies. What they really did, the police allege, was to experiment in counterfeiting. The kitchen was fitted up as a dark room; a camera, a printing press, photographic supplies and other equipment handy to counterfeits, was found there. But what the police relied on to rivet their case was a bundle of charred counterfeit bills under the kitchen sink, and bits of many other such bills, charred by fire, scattered through the four rooms.

Inspector Faurot announced that his detectives had discovered evidence that Schmidt had burned one of the sections of the leg of the murdered woman in a vacant lot in Macomb's Place, between 151st street and 152d street.

"This tip was given to the police," he said, "by an employee of a contractor named McKnight. On the night of September 3 a man was seen walking into the vacant lot carrying a can and a large bundle.

"A few minutes later flames appeared in one corner of the lot. The man remained beside them, pouring on oil from time to time, when the flames seemed to be dying out. He continued to do this for nearly an hour.

"O'Neill, a detective, investigated this clue. He found that the can with a little oil in the bottom had been left in the lot. Bits of pillow ticking were lying about. It was the same pattern as that in the pillow which contained part of the torso of the murdered woman.

"Finally Detective O'Neill found a fragment of charred bone six inches long. Both ends of the bone had been sawed off. In the middle was what seemed to be the knee joint. It was charred so badly, however, that this could not be ascertained definitely.

In the embers left by the fire Detective O'Neill found part of a burned photograph. The only thing that could be made out in the picture was the head and shoulders of a man wearing a clerical collar who stood on the rear of a train of cars. The name "Priest" appeared near the platform of the car on which the man was standing.

Long before Schmidt came to the United States he had a bad record. Strangely enough, this early record did not become known until Monday and it was sent to Mr. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, in answer to a cable message asking information.

"It seems to be pretty thoroughly established," Mr. Lavelle said "that he was a priest. His record abroad is a bad one."

Mr. Lavelle read the following message sent by direction of the Bishop of Mainz, Germany, Rt. Rev. George Kirstein:

"John Schmidt was born in Achenbach, Germany. Priest of the Diocese of Mainz. Ordained in 1907. Appointed chaplain in 1909. Ran away from Mainz because of attempted frauds. Arrested by police, declared insane and discharged. Suspended by Bishop for this and also for presenting falsified documents with regards to studies he pretended to have made."

Dutch Women May Vote.

The Hague, Netherlands, Sept. 17.—There is every indication that women will shortly be given the parliamentary franchise in Holland. In the speech from the Throne delivered at the opening of the States General today the new Dutch cabinet stated its intention of granting the vote to women.

Painter Falls From Pole to Death.

Bethlehem, Pa., Sept. 17.—Evan Williams, a painter, was killed by a fall from the top of a trolley pole at Slatington.

Red raspberry rows should be about six feet apart, plants spaced two feet apart in the row (2,620 to the acre).

SCHMIDT AND MURKIN

Priest and Aumiller Girl Whom He Confessed Murdering.

Hans Schmidt, an assistant priest at St. Joseph's Catholic church at 45 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, New York, has confessed murdering and dismembering the body of Anna Ammiller and depositing the parts of the torso in the Hudson river. The girl was a servant in the house of another priest. Mystery surrounding the finding of parts of the body baffled the police departments of two cities, but New York officers were successful in finally running down one crier and after locating Schmidt obtained a complete confession from him.

$650,000 PEARL NECKLACE FOUND

Picked Up in London Street by Workingman.

London, Sept. 17.—A mysterious package found in a street of North London was found to contain fifty-eight of the fifty-nine pearls composing the $650,000 necklace that disappeared mysteriously last July while in transit from Paris to London.

Scotland Yard admitted that the pearls have been positively identified as those that made up the costly necklace, but the police would say no more about the matter.

The pearls were found by a workman on his way from home. He turned them over to the first policeman he saw. Two weeks ago five men were arrested charged with complicity in the theft of the pearl necklace, and in the Bow street police court were remanded without bail for trial. Police detectives continued to work on the case, and it was alleged that evidence was found involving postal employees in the theft.

The costly necklace was assembled by Max Meyer, a Paris jeweler, and he sent it to London in July by registered post. It disappeared en route, the jeweler told the police.

AUTO BURNS; FIVE HURT

Car Skids and Upsets, Pinning Occupants, Who Were Rescued.

Naticook, Pa., Sept. 17.—Two men were seriously injured and three others bruised when the automobile of John L. Turner, turned turtle here.

The injured are: Thomas Jacobs, fractured arm, severe cuts about head and face and internal injuries; Edward J. Lewis, chief of fire department, two ribs fractured and shoulder bone broken, severely cut and bruised; John L. Turner, Edward J. Lewis and John Roberts, cut and bruised.

Crossing a railroad track the car skidded on the rails and turned completely over, pinning the men. The car caught fire and before help came Lewis and Jacobs were in great danger of being burned to death.

Cars Anti-Trust Damage Suit.

Boston, Sept. 17.—A suit for $3,000,000 brought under the Sherman anti-trust law by Charles A. Strout of Portland, Maine, trustee for the God du Sons Metal Pastening Company against the United Shoe Machinery Company was dismissed in the United States District Court on the ground that the action was barred by the statute of limitations.

PRETTY PARTY FROCK

WHITE CHIFFON MOST APPROPRIATE FOR SMALL GIRL.

As Much Attention Given to the Details of Children's Wear as to That of the Grown-Ups—No Fixed Waist Line.

No more than in grown-ups' is there any lack of variety in wearing apparel for children. Coats, frocks, hats—each shows interesting little touches, writes Cora Moore in the Washington Star.

Children of all ages are wearing their skirts unusually short just now, while as for the waist line, it may be anywhere above or below the normal waist line, for the use of the normal line has a tendency to make the figure look older, and the chief characteristic of any frock between four and sixteen years should be its youthfulness.

Chiffon seems hardly suitable for children's frocks, even for wear at the most pretentious parties, but fashion, not always discreet, insists upon introducing it for their small ladyships this year; and, since that is so, here is a delightful little model that can be made up quite inexpensively.

The skirt, gathered with a two-inch heading at the high waist line, has two three-inch tucks run around it, midway of the length. It opens down the front and has a small curved slash above the knees with a tiny bit of draping caught up under the center.

White Chiffon for a Little Girl's Party Frock.

eling of delicate pink chiffon roses that top the hem.

The roses are also used about the waist instead of a sash, though in back there is a flat bow with long ends of azure blue ribbon.

The blouse is very simply made on the peasant variety, with a round neck and elbow sleeves finished with plaited lace ruffling. The sleeves are set into dropped armholes and finished with a corded seam. Some of the fullness in front is draped up under two tiny blue satin bows and there are two more set along the outside of each sleeve.

BRIEF FASHION NOTES

Cubist designs are seen even in some of the new corset materials. The black and white combination in footwear continues to be liked.

The crown dent is a smart feature of the new fells for country wear. Chamois yellow is one of the colors seen among girls' topcoats.

Nothing equals white chinchilla for the fashionable sports coats. Gold and green is fast coming to be one of the favorite combinations.

All lace underwear is distinctly in the mode. Frequently such garments are made over net.

The newest collars on the fall coats are fastened up high at the neck to allow for cold weather.

Draped coats are liked for dress wear; simple, straight cut garments for general utility purposes.

Coat chains are being made of beads; steel intermingled with cut coral are favorites.

The most fashionable corset simulates the uncensored figure. Stiff or constrained lines are a thing of the past.

Beads Tone White Costumes.

Inexpensive glass beads can be worn to give the right tone of color to the all-white costume. Opague beads are sold in chains sufficiently long to go about the neck and drop in a V-line in front—a line which is artistic and much more becoming than the round neck line—for prices varying from 50 cents to $1.50. These beads come in various shades of green and are especially effective in jade color. They are also sold in yellow, red and blue.

For Tight Shoes.

Summer is the season above all others when one's shoes seem to hurt, and this year one looks in horror at the rows of patent leather ones that are brought out in the exclusive shops, but true, these may be worn with comfort if one will shake a little powdered alum into the toe of her shoe before going out. Do not put it inside the stocking, merely inside the toe.

Use Quicklime.

An earthen dish of quicklime placed in closets will absorb moisture, act as a disinfectant and keep rats and mice away.

A Little Story Of a Big Town

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by American Literary Press.

I stood under a lamppost on Hester street, watching the overtired children as they fell asleep, while sitting on the steps, the men as they smoked and rested, the women as they dragged themselves wearily along and purchased a bit here and there to stock the family cupboard for Sunday. On Canal, on Grand, along the Bowery, in Chatham square, men and women are laughing in good nature as they elbow each other and throng the stores to purchase ornaments and luxuries. Here men and women are sullen and silent, many of them wondering where the barest necessities are to come from.

"If you won't help me we shall have to go hungry tomorrow."

It was a little old woman who had approached so softly that I did not hear her.

"Where do you live?" I asked.

She pointed to a four story tenement almost opposite.

"Any family?"

"A sick husband and four children, sir."

"Very well; lead on, and I will follow."

She kept looking back, and there was a puzzled expression on her face.

"This way—that's a child—keep to the rail—don't fear the dog—we're almost up."

"And as we reached the upper hall we turned to the right, passed down a blind hall running the other way, and presently she pushed open a door, and we entered a room lighted by a smoking lamp.

"John, children, it's a stranger come to see us," said the woman as I stood and looked about.

Here were two small rooms, three chairs, a cupboard, an old table, a wretched bedstead and more wretched bedding, on which lay a man. Across the room was a mattress, on which the children were lying as I entered. In the other room I saw a stove, a wash-tub and a bucket of coal.

"Sit down, sir," said the woman as she placed a chair.

The husband looked to be fifty years old. He had the bright eyes and the hollow cheeks of a consumptive.

"Are you a doctor?" he asked as I sat down.

"No."

"The rent is overdue, but we haven't even bread to eat," he said.

"I am not your landlord nor his agent. I simply came up to see you—to see if you were sick, to see what you needed."

"John, you know how it is with us. I asked him on the street for money, and he's come up to—to?"

"To see if you were really in need of help," I said as she paused. "Have you had any supper?"

"Just a crust for him, sir, but nothing for the rest, and but for you the children would be crying with hunger."

"Very well. I'll mind the house while you go out. Get bread, butter, tea, milk, sugar, potatoes and meat."

"You—you don't mean it?" she gasped.

The man rose up on his elbow to get a better look at me, and I saw something like alarm in his face. To quiet him I said:

"The case is clear enough. You used to get along all right, but sickness came; you could no longer work; you have reached your last penny. Why shouldn't I help you a bit?"

"It's sadly enough we need it, God knows, but—but—"

"But you can't make out why I came up here?"

"No, sir."

"Well, don't worry about it. Queer things are always happening to all of us. How long have you been ill?"

"Over a year, sir."

"And how have you lived?"

"By using the few dollars I had put by and by selling whatever we could spare until we are as you see us. I once earned my $3 a day, sir, and my poor man's family was better cared for."

"And today you are penniless and hungry?"

"Aye, sir, and as I laid here I'd have cut my throat if I had a knife."

By and by, as we talked, the mother and children returned. I heard the mother shouting, even on the lower stairs. Each had a load, and the wife returned after a lamp, a bottle of wine and some other things. Poor soul, she was laughing and crying by turns and to have seen those forlorn children sit down on the floor and eat the dry bread as famishing wolves devour their prey was something to pain your heart.

"It's real meat, John," said the woman as she came to his bedside—real meat, and real potatoes, and real sugar and tea, and there is a God after all!"

"Yes, there is a God, Mary," he whispered as he wept.

And while I sat there the wife cooked supper, and the hunger of all was satisfied, and the two smaller children afterward knelt at the bedside and repeated the Lord's Prayer and were asleep three minutes later.

It was only a drop, only a little ray of hope shining through the darkness and gloom of their poverty and despair, but to have caught that one ray filled them with new strength to battle in the future, and I had touched elbows with still another phase of humanity.

The size of the tomatoes produced may be considerably increased if the number of bearing branches is reduced to three or four and if the tips of these are nipped off so as to encourage fruit rather than stem and leaf production.

Swedish Bridal Superstitions.

In Sweden the bridegroom has a great fear of trolls and sprites, and as an antidote against their power he sews into his clothes various strong smelling herbs, such as garlic and rosemary. It is customary to fill the bride's pocket with bread, which she gives to the poor she meets on the way to the church, and so averts misfortune with the alms she bestows. On their return from church the bride and bridegroom visit their cow house and farms that the cattle may thrive and multiply.

How to Reckon Tonnage.

The method of reckoning a vessel's tonnage, carpenter's measurements, is as follows: For a single-deck vessel, multiply the length of keel, the breadth of beam, and depth of hold together and divide by 95. For a double deck vessel, multiply as before, taking half the breadth of beam for the depth of the hold and divide by 95.

In Company.

In mixed company, among acquaintances and strangers, endeavor to learn something from all. Be swift to hear; be cautious of your tongue; lest you betray your ignorance and perhaps offend some who are present.—Isaac Watts.

PEOPLE OF CURIOUS CUSTOMS

Laplanders Live In Primitive Style, Following Their Own Ideas of Comfort and Recreation.

While civilized man suffers intensely from cold feet every winter, the Laplander, living in the far north of Europe, has no such trouble. A traveler writes: "Their boots are also made of reindeer skin, and are worn very large and the toes are pointed and curve upward, so as to be easily slipped into their ski. The Lapp usually fills his boots half full with a peculiar green grass, into which he thrusts his naked foot; he then packs the boots full with more grass, tucks the ends of his trousers inside and binds them tightly round with many turns of a brightly woven braid. With these precautions they never suffer from cold feet, and chilblains, corns or such like civilized complaints are an unknown horror to them."

Concerning other customs the same writer says: "The Lapps are essentially a nomadic race, and spend most of their lives wandering fancy free among the wild and glorious scenery of their northern home. However, at times no doubt the stillness of the frozen mountains becomes too still and they turn their herds and start toward their nearest meeting place. Twice a year they hold these general gatherings—at Easter and midsummer—when they congregate and hold a general fair. It is on these occasions that they celebrate their weddings and funerals. The revelries last only about ten days, but many marriages take place between couples who perhaps have never met previously."

"As soon as a Lapp can afford to buy enough reindeer for himself he leaves the parental tent, takes a wife and roams away wherever his heart or reindeer dictates. There are no social distinctions in Lapland. Should a man have no reindeer, or possibly have lost what he had, he travels with a rich man and helps him tend the herd, but he lives and feeds with them in the same tent, and is quite on a social equality, until he can afford to start off with his own herd."

ALREADY HAD MAXIMUM LOAD

Trooper Had Good Reason for Allowing Horse to Go Without Regular Equipment.

There were few horses left in the livery stable of a certain middle Jersey town when the local cavalry company went out for maneuvers. In fact, a number of cabmen had gone out of business for the time being in order that the cavalrymen might have mounts.

Trooper Bright was on a steed which readily captured the prize for the most gaunt, tired-looking, and moth-eaten creature ever seen on a parade ground.

"Say, Bright," said a companion, after he had recovered from the first shock, "what is that you're on?"

"That's a horse," said Bright not at all brightly.

"Well, I'll take your word for it," replied the other. "Did you know that he'd cast a shoe?"

"Yep."

"Why didn't you stop off at the garage and get him shod?"

"Would have, but I didn't think he could carry more than three shoes."

Persian Farmer.
In Persia one of the chief occupations is farming, but it is carried on in such a manner that it can hardly be called such. If the Persian would follow the example of our western farmer his country might be very fertile, but he pays little attention to irrigation and cultivates the soil in the crudest way imaginable.

This crudity comes from two causes—poor implements and natural indolence. The Persian plow is a crooked beam of wood with a bit of iron at the end. It is just such a plow, doubtless, as the ancestors of Abraham used in the plains of Mesopotamia. It stirs the soil to the depth of only an inch or two. Persian indolence is well illustrated by the fact that in hoeing one man holds the hoe while another pulls it up and down by means of a rope.

Got His Answer.
When the Rev. John McNeill was holding revival services at Cardiff a young man one night, thinking to perplex the preacher, sent up a note to the platform with the request that the following question be publicly answered:

"Dear Mr. McNeill: If you are seeking to enlighten young men kindly tell me who was Cain's wife."

Mr. McNeill read the note, and then, amid breathless silence, said:

"I love young men—inquirers for truth especially—and should like to give this young man a word of advice. It is this: Don't lose your soul's salvation looking after other people's wives."

Proving Daughter's Innocence.
Ida Black had retired from the most select colored circles for a brief space on account of a slight difficulty connected with a gentleman's poultry yard. Her mother was being consoled by a white friend.

"Why, Aunt Esther, I was mighty sorry to hear about Ida—"

"Marse John, Ida ain't nudder tuk dem chickens. Ida wouldn't do sich a thing! Ida wouldn't demean herse'f to rob nobody's hen roost—and, anyway, dem old chickens warn't nothing 't all but feathers when we picked 'em."—Lippincott's.

READY FOR IMMEDIATE USE

Holder Makes Sure That String, Scissors and Paste Are on Hand When They Are Wanted.

String, scissors and paste are three things that are often required at the same time and are seldom at hand when they are wanted. It is therefore well worth while to make a neat little receptacle for them in which they may be placed and kept together. Our sketch shows a handy little article for this purpose made with the aid of an old cigar box.

In making it a box of a suitable size must be selected and the lid removed, as it will not be required, and the box afterwards thoroughly cleaned both inside and out. A division is fixed across the center, and this can either be made of cardboard or possibly a piece can be cut to fit from the lid of the box and fastened in its place with a drop of glue.

To smoothly cover the box with thin silk or some pretty remnant of cretonne is an easy matter, and the material can be folded over the edges and underneath the box and fastened in position with any strong adhesive. One division is used for the string and the other for the paste, and in front there is a strap into which a pair of scissors may be slipped.

This little article will be found most useful upon the writing table, and perhaps another more roughly made might find a place upon the kitchen shelf.

EASTERN MOTIF FOR BLOUSES

Oriental Needlework Given Preference in the Adornment of These Dainty Articles of Dress.

Japanese and Chinese embroideries have ever been considered artistic, and this season shows a marked preference for the eastern or oriental needlework.

Many of the loveliest blouses are embroidered in the colors one sees in the lovely cloisonne vases.

Select a soft Japanese silk in white or a pale tint and, using a pattern which exactly fits, cut out the blouse. In the front and sleeves stamp a Japanese design of cherry blossoms, chrysanthemums, butterflies or roses and embroider with silk in tones of rosy pink, pale green, dull green, blue and yellow, using a long-and-short stitch.

If you desire to have your blouse of sheer white linen or batiste, embroider the design in white or celestial blue, using mercerized cotton. A white voile blouse made with a sailor collar and turned-back cuffs could be effective if embroidered with a Japanese design.

White crepe de chine or soft satin makes a dainty blouse, and you will find it an easy material to embroider.

DAINTINESS ITS CHIEF CHARM

Simple but Decidedly Attractive Gown for Which French Voile Would Be Appropriate.

The gown shown in the drawing today is of dainty French voile, simply made, but most attractive. Folded blue satin ribbon outlines a little vest of tucked white net with a flat bow of the former at the bust line. The material has a cream ground with the popular floral design in Dresden shades and the delicate blue of the ribbon gives a pretty French touch. The giraffe is of the same. There is a little applied bow of dainty lace. The short sleeves are finished with a narrow cuff of lace and dainty undersleeve of net. The three scant flounces are finished by a quarter-inch hem.

Aprons for the Traveler.
A great convenience to the traveler is a toilet apron. It is a small oilcloth upon which buttons snugly about the waist. It is fitted with many pockets of various sizes for the various toilet accessories. The damp sponge, the cake of soap, the toothbrush, as well as the many other articles which should be kept dry, can be put easily in the pockets of this waterproof apron, and will, therefore, always be in place when they are needed. This sort of apron is especially convenient when one is traveling on a train. It can be made at home, or can be bought for 75 cents.

Furniture Hint.
To clean deeply carved furniture use a soft sponge, squeezed as dry as possible out of tepid water, to which a little turpentine has been added, and go over the carving. It will take up all dust. Rub dry with a soft cloth, and you will be delighted with the result.

If a hog misses a feed watch him; if he misses the second feed, remove him from the herd and thoroughly disinfect where he has been.

NOTES from MEADOWBROOK FARM

Cows must have salt.
Don't keep irritating dogs.
Use care in the cow's ration.
Sheep help rid farms of weeds.
Brooder lamps should be cleaned every day.
Chicks should not be fed until they are 36 hours old.
Every home should have an abundance of strawberries.
Powder the chicks occasionally during the first eight weeks.
Experience is of more value than capital in poultry raising.
The specialist succeeds in any line of business, while others are failing.
Plowing is at best the hardest work; our farm horses have to perform.
An orchard, if you have one, is the very best place in which you can raise chicks.
Cornstalks are valuable as a fertilizer and should be left on the field after cutting.
A field of corn after it is a few feet high makes an ideal place to raise chicks in.
A few strips of tile will often turn a mud hole into the most productive spot on the farm.
An egg may be fertile and hatch and still the chick will not live because of lack of vitality.
In cold weather place from ten to thirteen eggs under the hen; in warm weather from thirteen to fifteen.
The coop for hen and chicks should be well ventilated, easy to clean, and of sufficient proportions to insure comfort.

Eggs from hens that have made a fair showing in laying this winter will be more fertile than those that did heavy laying.

It may not pay to keep any very great surplus of corn in the cribs, yet it is sometimes mighty comforting to know that it is there.

Scarcity of stock cattle of all kinds and high prices asked and offered is a common local condition reported from the corn belt states.

When moss creeps into the meadows and pastures they need to be broken up and the soil exposed to the sun and air before reseeding.

Raspberries produce good crops in the same soil for year, while strawberries produce their best crops the first year they come into full bearing.

As a rule, the cause of a flock being unprofitable lies largely with the keeper and the care they receive rather than a superiority of one breed over another.

By raising standard-bred poultry one will be able to sell stock and eggs for breeding purposes, and get much better prices than when selling eggs and fowls for food only.

Busy hens are not only the best egg producers, but their eggs show the best fertility. In order to keep them engaged at work strew the floor of the pen with hay or straw and scatter the grain in this.

One of the safe things to tie to on the farm is a good brood sow—pure-bred. In a few years she and her offspring, if properly cared for, will put many dollars into the pockets of the farmers of the country.

Hens prefer the morning sun to the afternoon sun when they cannot have both. Therefore, arrange to open a window in the east end of the hen house when bad weather does not permit of the entire south side being thrown open.

The last United States census shows that there are 307,706 women farmers in this country. The numbers have gained since the census was taken and promises to increase. Many women have homesteaded claims in all of the western states and have made successes of farming.

If your supply of manure is limited and it is fine in texture better make application after plowing rather than before. It may pay to use part of the manure in the hills, especially for such plants as eggplants, tomatoes, cucumbers, melons, muskmelons and lima beans. Manure used in hills should always be fairly well decayed.

Herole pruning measures are needed to bring many old trees into bearing; but it need not all be done the first year.

In cool weather 10 to 13 chicks are sufficient for one hen, while in warmer weather 15 to 20 can be cared for successfully.

A pound of clover seed to the bushel of small grain helps to give one's land the clover habit, and prepares the way for a good stand.

A 200-bushel yield of potatoes per acre removes from the soil 46 pounds of nitrogen, 21 pounds of phosphoric acid and 74 pounds of potash.

An apple tree that has been properly pruned from the time it is set needs comparatively little attention when it reaches bearing age.

The scratching hen will have better vitality, and a better laying record than the lazy hen that waits by the gate for the next feed to be doled out.

There is this to say for incubator hatching: Mites and other pests are not waiting outside the shell ready to pounce on the helpless chick as soon as it emerges.

High fertility is exceedingly important for cabbage. This crop must have an abundance of quickly available plant food. Application of nitrate of soda usually pays.

A pig must not be allowed to stop growing. If it does, the loss is not confined only to the days of unthrift, but all the food consumed afterward is likely to give less profit.

For a straight hog fence it has been found that twenty-six inches is not high enough. If there are to be no barb wires on top of the hog fence should not be less than thirty inches high.

Plants send their rootlets a surprising distance in search of food and water, and these rootlets show almost human intelligence in traveling around stones and other obstructions to gain their end.

When plowing the land for parsnips and other deep-growing root plants, plow deep and keep the manure down deep; otherwise you will have a lot of surface roots instead of the long, straight roots desired.

The silo will help you meet the feeding problem, enable you to save about 40 per cent of the feeding value of the corn plant and make it possible for the farm crop to maintain more animals. The silo is a good investment.

THAW LAWYERS OBTAIN DELAY

Has U. S. Habeas Corpus Writ to Fall Back On.

JEROME FAILS IN FIGHT

Attorneys are Granted Delay and Judge Says There is no Law by Which Thaw Can be Extradited.

Littleton, N. H., Sept. 17.—Judge Aldrich, sitting in the United States District Court, here, granted a suspension of the Federal writ of habeas corpus procured by attorneys for Harry K. Thaw, fugitive slayer of Stanford White, on the plea of Thaw's counsel. The decision was made despite vigorous opposition by William Travers Jerome, special attorney for the State of New York.

In an open discussion with Jerome after announcing the suspension of the hearing, Judge Aldrich said that search of the statutes had failed to reveal to him any law under which a man in Thaw's position, a lunatic charged with a crime, could be extradited.

The action of Judge Aldrich is a notable victory for the able lawyers directing Thaw's fight against return to Matteawan, whence he escaped on the morning of August 16. The victory lies in the fact that Governor Feikens is to hear arguments in Concord next Tuesday by counsel for and against the extradition of Thaw, and should he decide to sign the extradition papers, Thaw's lawyer may, under the writ of habeas corpus have the extradition held up. This will delay the matter for some time, and possibly will result in Thaw's freedom.

The first argument in the case was made by William Shurtleff, for Thaw who pointed out that the extradition hearing in the Thaw case was to be held in the near future, and asked that the habeas corpus hearing be postponed. Jerome objected.

"There is no Federal issue involved here," he said. "I feel constrained to say that this writ has been obtained under circumstances which approach very near trifling with the court."

Here he introduced an affidavit by Lindsay Denison, a newspaper writer setting forth that Thaw's counsel had told him that the writ had been obtained, not to bring about the fugitive's freedom now but to safeguard him in the future against sudden removal should extradition be granted.

"This writ," he concluded, "presents no serious question of law or fact, but was obtained for no other purpose than delay."

George F. Morris, one of Thaw's New Hampshire lawyers, answered Jerome. The application for the writ was entirely regular, he said, while the warrant on which New York sought to get Thaw was a mere subterfuge.

"It is an honest endeavor on our part to get this matter before the court," he said. "We have had no assurance that Brother Jerome would not take Mr. Thaw at once if the extradition warrant were signed."

The court declared that the New Hampshire statutes prevented him from holding a hearing upon the writ while the Governor's extradition inquiry was pending.

"The immediate question," continued the court, "is whether the proceedings shall go on or be suspended. It is the judgment of the court that a suspension would not menace the interests of either side and in view of the fact that the Governor hesitates to proceed with the extradition hearing until the status of this matter is assured, I suspend it. It is not adjourned, but suspended, and I suggest that either side notify me within six days when they are prepared to go on with it."

Thaw sat with his eyes riveted on the court. His lawyers were grinning. He was reminded back to the joint custody of Sheriff Drew, of Coos county, who arrested him after his recent deportation from Canada and United States Marshal Nute.

ARTIST KILLS ARMY CAPTAIN

German Court of Honor Was Judging
if Duel Was Necessary.

Berlin, Germany, Sept. 17.—Army circles were greatly excited over the killing of Capt. Von Wertenhagen, of the army reserve, by Prof. Heinrich Maas, a noted artist.

While the court of honor of the army reserve was in session investigating whether a duel was necessary between the men Maas met the officer in a corridor of the building and shot him. Von Wertenhagen died instantly. It is said that the officer struck Prof. Maas in the face.

World's Tallest Man Dies.

He was seven feet eight inches tall and at one time traveled with a circus. He became tired of that life and engaged in farming.

MEXICO CELEBRATES INDEPENDENCE DAY

Greatest Parade in Capital's History Marks Festival.

Mexico City, Sept. 17.—The largest parade ever held in Mexico City was formed in celebration of the 193d anniversary of the nation's independence. Cold drizzling rain caused the flags and bunting to droop and made marching over the sodden pavements a dreary business, but it did not quench the holiday spirit.

From early morning detachments of soldiers, cadets, students and volunteers made their way toward Chapultepec, where the day's celebration began with a speechmaking and music, and where patriotic utterances of orators appointed for the occasion stirred embryo soldiers to excesses of enthusiasm.

Provisional President Huerta, in full uniform, surrounded by his staff and accompanied by many Government officials and foreign diplomats, made a short address applauding the patriotic ardor of the younger element of the population and calling them the "hope of the nation" and "worthy sons of loyal fathers."

At the hour appointed for the opening of the civic observances at Chapultepec, the Presidential salute boomed from the guns of the arsenal. At the conclusion of the ceremonies the Presidential party drove through the streets lined with holiday makers showering confetti and flowers from windows and balconies to the National Palace, where Huerta reviewed the parade.

It was noticeable that the guard about the United States Embassy was unusually vigilant. There were scattered anti-American demonstrations and cries of "drive out the gringos" were heard at intervals.

INFERNAL MACHINE FOR OTIS

Explosive Contrivance Sent to Owner of Los Angeles "Times."

Los Angeles, Sept. 17.—An infernal machine, which failed to explode, was sent to General Harrison Gray Otis, owner of the Los Angeles "Times."

The "Times" is the newspaper whose plant was destroyed as part of the dynamiting activities of James B. McNamara and Orville E. McManis.

The mysterious package was sent through the mail. The package was about four by five inches. When it was set on end it clicked like an alarm clock. Burgess and Shy, detectives, went to General Otis's home, got the box and took it to police headquarters. A powder expert was sent for and, after an examination of the package, advised that it be taken to the river where it could be opened without damage to any one.

Foes Slay Each Other.

Aberdeen, Mississippi, Sept. 17.—State Senator H. F. Broyles and E. F. Hendricks, a lumberman of Selma, Tenn., killed each other in a fight the result of a quarrel of a year's standing over a sale of timber lands.

The men met and after a few words Hendricks drew a pistol and fired. As the bullet struck Senator Broyles near the heart, he drove an axe into the head of his assailant.

The veterans' parade will be a feature today. It was announced that a detachment of Forrest's cavalry would march at the head of the Ohio division.

The challenge for a foot race recently issued by Colonel J. L. Smith, sixty-nine years old, of Detroit, Mich., a Union veteran, has been accepted by Private Wolf, eighty years old, a local Confederate veteran. The race will take place at Chamberlain Field tomorrow. One hundred yards is the distance.

When Colonel Smith issued his challenge he was quoted as claiming the veteran championship of the United States for any distance. Howe, seventy years old of Port Huron, Mich.; Colonel S. G. Barnes, sixty-eight years old, of Pittsburgh, and William A. Henshaw, sixty-nine years old, of Cleveland.

$75,000 A YEAR FOR DRESS

A Few Chicago Women Spend That Much, Many Others Don't.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—There are a few women in Chicago who spend $75,000 a year in personal adornment, according to an estimate submitted at the semi-annual convention of the Chicago Dressmakers' Club. The dressmakers figured that the average factory girl spends $3.84 a week for clothing.

These figures were arrived at by averaging the estimates made by the various delegates. The table reads:

"A few $75,000; one hundred social leaders, $50,000; ten thousand, $5,000; well dressed club women, $1,500; the suffragist, $500; the church worker, $500; the social worker, $300; the stenographer, $275; the shop girl, $250 and the factory girl, $200."

Madame C. H. Phair, president of the club, declared many working girls lose money because they do not know how to make their own clothing.

Railroad Clerk Eats Fifteen Ice Cream
Cones in Twelve Minutes.

Harrisburg, Sept. 17.—Frank Toland a yard clerk here for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, bet Harry McIntyre, another yard clerk, that McIntyre couldn't eat fifteen 5-cent ice cream cones in fifteen minutes. The wager was $5.

McIntyre won the bet, and Toland not only had to pay it, but had to pay 75 cents as the price of the delicacy.

At the start of his feat McIntyre ate two cones a minute, but slowed to half that pace before the finish.

SIX NEW DESTROYERS ARE CONTRACTED FOR

They Are to Be the Largest of Their Class.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Secretary Daniels made conditional award of the contracts for six torpedo boat destroyers, numbers 57 and 62, as follows:

Two vessels to the New York Shipbuilding Company at $825,000 each; two to William Cramp & Sons' Ship and Engine Building Company, Philadelphia, at $881,000 each; one to the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation, Quincy, Mass., at $61,000; and one to the Bath, Maine, Iron Works, at $884,000.

These vessels are to be the largest of their class. They will have the same high sustained sea speed that has proved so successful in previous boats of the same type, but they mark a decided advance in radius of action at a high speed. Increased space and weight has been assigned for the living accommodations of both crew and officers.

The destroyers will be 310 feet long, 9 feet 10 inches beam, 9 feet 3 inches draft and 1090 tons displacement. They will be oil burners exclusively, and will be propelled by steam turbines.

A Double Game

By HARRY VAN AMBURG

"Mighty dull this lounging about a hotel waiting for something," said a man to another who occupied a chair beside him.

"Well, yes, rather. Cards is about the only way to pass the time. And the difficulty about cards is you must get up a party to play 'em."

"I couldn't do that," said the other. "For I don't know a soul socially in the town. I expected to finish my business here today and get out this evening, but I didn't succeed."

"I know several men who board here," said the other. "I was thinking of getting up a little game of poker this evening in my room, five cent ante or something like that."

"I wish you would and let me in."

The party met, and the man who didn't know anybody was introduced by his friend to the others as Mr. Wheelock, the introducer's name being Jones. They sat down to play with a five cent ante, but kept raising it till it reached a dollar. Mr. Wheelock didn't object and bet as high as any of the party, sometimes winning and sometimes losing.

It was not long before Wheelock discovered that, though he neither lost nor won much, the money he staked was gradually passing out of his hands and was supplied by new five dollar bills, all on the same bank. The fact didn't seem to surprise him, nor did he object to it. He did not even comment upon it. But Mr. Jones, from whom the bills came, remarked that he had had $1,000 paid him that afternoon at a bank and it had been given him all in these new five dollar bills on the bank from which he had received the money. This explained his having so much of it all of the same denomination.

While the game was in progress a bell boy rapped at the door and asked if Mr. Wheelock was in the room. On being told that he was he handed in a bouquet of flowers. Wheelock received the flowers with evident astonishment. When the others rallied him at having a sweetheart near at hand he looked embarrassed and declared that he didn't know a woman in the place, and if he had "made a mash" he was entirely unconscious of it.

"However," he said, "gentlemen, I trust that you will drink to the lady, whoever she may be, with me." And, rising, he pressed the electric button and on the arrival of a waiter ordered a bottle of wine. The quaffing of wine and the game went on together after this, but none of the men present seemed to care to drink to excess. Mr. Jones, in whose room the party were, was especially abstemious, barely sipping his wine.

But Mr. Wheelock and one or two of the others having finished the bottle, the first named ordered another, and when it had been left in the room Wheelock followed the waiter out for some purpose and when he returned shut the door and turned the key unknown to the others. He then deftly slipped it up his sleeve and after rummaging his seat, being hidden by the table, transferred it to his pocket.

"It seems to me," remarked one of the party, "that those flowers have a very decided perfume."

"Very decided," chimed in another.

"It makes me feel like turning in," said a third.

"Perhaps we'd better open a window," observed the host, "and get some air. Would you object, Mr. Wheelock?"

"Certainly not," Jones went to a window and tried to open it. It seemed to be stuck. He went to another, which also resisted his efforts. Mr. Wheelock seemed to be intent on the cards, but his mind was on the windows. He had gained access to that very room during the day and had driven a nail into the sash of each window.

Jones turned away with a frightened look on his face. There were two games being played in his room—one by himself, the other by Mr. Wheelock. Jones staggered to the door and tried to open it. Finding it locked, he looked more frightened still.

"Someone has locked us in here," he said. "We must get out."

He caught on to the back of a chair the perfume from the flowers was overcoming him. He returned to the window and made another effort to lift the sash. He failed and was on his way to the other window when he sank down unconscious.

Meanwhile the others of the party were also giving way to the effects of the flowers and one by one either rolled down to the floor or bent over unconscious on the table. Wheelock counteracted the fumes by holding a vial under his nose. When all except himself had succumbed he summoned a waiter and directed him to bring the police as quick as possible. They arrived in a few minutes and were much surprised at the scene before them—several men asleep and money in heaps on the table.

"That man," said Wheelock, pointing to Jones, "is a counterfeiter. I am Parkinson, a detective. I tracked him here, and the others, I fancy, are his colleagues. He has been trying to shove his stuff on me for my good money. Better put the bracelets on him before he comes to himself."

When the party woke up they found themselves in the hands of the police. But the only one "wanted" was Mr. Jones.
